

To whom it may concern,

I'm really hoping that you all don't buckle under the weight of corporate bribery and coercion and take away our free press. Mr. Powell, in a democracy, you DO decide laws based on "polls and surveys", as those reveal the will of the people, which in case you have forgotten what the Constitution and the Bill of Rights say is the idea in a democracy. If you scratch the backs of the people who have tried to buy your vote, and who by all appearances have succeeded, then you have crossed a line that there's no coming back from, and you'll be guilty of helping destroy what's left of our representative government by giving a few huge companies even more power over what we hear from and about our government, all too much of which is distorted or hidden from us as it is.
